It was certain two other children had drowned.

Almost 200 persons were rescued from trees and house-tops.

Several communities along the Republican river and other streams were without communications and Harry Strunk, publisher of the Cook Gazette, expressed belief the death toll would rise as soon as these facilities could be restored.

Hundreds of miles of railroad trucks was washed out.

Nine persons were injured by tornadoes which struck Lomis and Goshburg, Neb.

The storm, moving eastward, left as much as five inches of rain in Iowa and brought the town of Carroll its first flood in history.

Borne by winds up to 75 miles an hour, the Montana-Montana-British Columbia vacation tourists clad in light summer clothing and stranded them in the bleak mountain pass in automobiles and a train.

highest freight rate charges of any section of Canada.

THE RAILWAYS' proposal would reduce the net income of primary producers in this region by millions of dollars annually, and would increase the cost of consumer goods coming in.

Mr. Bruce Smith, K.C., submitting a brief on behalf of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, said the railways had not made out a case for any freight rate increase, and called for a general rate investigation if necessary, by a Royal Commission.

Objection was taken by Isaac B. Philadel, K.C., Winnipeg, chief counsel for the Railway Association of Canada, to the part of the Chamber's brief which gave comparisons between rates in Alberta and other parts of Canada. He submitted that issue was not before the board.

Chief Commissioner J. A. Cross ruled that specific objections against the brief would be dealt with as they developed.

MR. SMITH, who is chairman of the Chamber of Commerce's special freight rates committee submitted that:

1. Freight services should not bear all the cost of the railways' increase.

2. A uniform rate of increase would be unfair to Alberta.

3. Wasteful railway freight operations should be eliminated.

4. A full freight-rate investigation should be held to "eliminate unjust discrimination and undue preference."

5. Standard mileage rates in all parts of the country should be equalized.

6. TRANSCONTINENTAL rates from the east to British Columbia, lowered by reason of water competition, handicap Alberta.

7. The "mountain differential" increased charges on freight over the province.

8. Western grain rates, lowered under the Cross's Test Pact agreement, are still higher than in the East.

9. National transportation policy, favoring the transport of certain commodities out of this province in the raw rather than finished state, handicaps Alberta's secondary industry.

James A. Ross, counsel for the Alberta Farmers' Union, intimated his organization would file a brief and exhibit critical of the Canadian Pacific Railway's accounts.

Mayor Harry Ainlay welcomed the board members on behalf of the city, and expressed the hope his findings would be of benefit to every section of Canada's national life.

initiation referred to British subjects still resident in Alberta.

After the attorney-general had read the section which would allocate $500 annually as a social security pension, Lord Simon asked:

"HOW IS IT SHOWN that this figure will not strain the financial resources of the province?"

"By our statement that in fitting this sum we have taken into consideration the productive capacity of the people of the province."

He added that the term "social security pension" meant "payment to individuals of claims on goods and services within the limitation of the natural resources of the province, and the productive capacity of the people to ensure an income of not less than $500 a year."

He said this figure was based on the 1945 price level.

Contending that this section did not relate to banks and banking within the meaning of the British North America Act, Maynard said it was legislation "relating to property and civil rights in the province."

"WE SUBMIT that even if this section affects the subjects of banks and banking, it does not affect the field of banking allotted to parliament by the B.N.A. act and there is no limitation legislation directly in conflict with it."

Maynard still was being subjected to intensive questioning when the hearing adjourned for lunch.

The Dominion of Canada is to be represented by George H. Storer, Edmonton, and P. W. Mundell, Ottawa, while E. J. Chambers of Ottawa will argue for the Canadian Bankers' Association appearing with the Dominion as respondents.

A Basis for Negotiation

The Government of Ontario is to raise its contribution to old age pensions, by a margin large enough to make the maximum pension payable in that province $40 per month, instead of $30, the limit to which it is raised by the new federal bill now before parliament.

The Dominion minister of health and welfare, whose department deals with pensions, says this announcement confirms his view that all the provinces are likely to make supplementary grants which will raise pensions everywhere above the presently prospective levels. The bill now under discussion does in fact provide that a province may thus raise the maximum to $50 a month without losing any part of the Dominion contribution. This is, in fact, a provision which raises the maximum to $50 figure if the provincial treasury supplies the extra money.

This is an indirect but quite plain admission that pensions will still be inadequate, despite the larger contribution which the Dominion proposes to make. It is a question then of which authority is to provide the money to make them adequate. Mr. Martin hopes the provincial governments will do so. But he does not say he would not meet them half way if the provinces made that condition on which they would accept.

That leaves the door open for negotiations, with a view to raising pensions to figures in keeping with the present cost of living. The Dominion and the provinces are adding the added expense. The initiative rests with the provinces, to whatever extent any provincial government may be willing to contribute in bearing the additional cost.

Alberta Interests at Stake

If Mr. John L. Lewis calls his threatened coal strike on July 7th, the proposed Dominion Coal Board may find early use for the emergency powers which are to be given it. The coal mining industry in the Maritimes is said to be urgently needed, and also of the industry on Vancouver Island. The board is to dig into these problems. It will also administer coal subsidies and subsidies voted by parliament.

And the long-range function of the Board will be to find new uses for coal, and tell the provinces what kind of national fuel policy is required. This regional demand has an indefinitely large interest at stake. How large will depend on how much drive the board puts into its work.

One factor which is affecting the industry in this province is the extent to which natural gas is being adopted as fuel in all large plants. This is in a great many smaller centres. This is cutting down the regional demand for coal and making it more urgent that widely extended markets be opened up and new uses for coal discovered. The new Board it is to be hoped, will be composed of men with imagination, an inquiring urge, and plenty of energy.

The Vote First Clause

British Columbia's new labor law is to get by early trial in the courts. Summons have been issued for three union leaders, and for 27 former employees of a Nanaimo laundry who went on strike in defiance of the new legislation. The leaders are charged with unlawfully authorizing a strike. The officers are charged with causing and taking part in a strike before a confederation board had been appointed and given a chance to act.

Particular interest will attach to the validity of a clause which demands that no strike shall occur until a government-supervised vote by ballot has been taken of the employees concerned. If this clause is declared to be sound law there can be no such thing in British Columbia in future as hot-headed leaders stampeding a group of employees into a strike which they do not privately approve.

"Importing" Labor

Premier Drew of Ontario is following the lead of the owner of a Quebec textile mill who went overseas looking for a supply of labor. The Premier announces that 7,000 people will be flown from Britain this summer, and will be placed in farm or industrial jobs by the provincial officials. The newcomers will pay their own passage.

Mr. Drew's political friends in the House of Commons raised quite a storm because the Quebec man "imported" a party of Polish girls, also by air, and also on condition that they pay their own passage. This, they said, was a species of slave-running, and grew warm in denouncing the importation of undisciplined labor. What they will say about Premier Drew's quite similar immigration plan should be interesting politically.

If the British migrants are not coming with employment contracts in their pockets, they are coming on the understanding that they will work where they are sent. At least the Quebec man guaranteed that the girls will have work and wages for the next two years. Whether Premier Drew has similarly guaranteed the British migrants against starvation is not stated. It is to be hoped that he has.

Mr. Frank Pike

A multitude of personal friends and business acquaintances in and around Edmonton will regret to learn of the death at Victoria, B.C., of Mr. Frank Pike. From 1916 to 1941 Mr. Pike was a prominent figure in banking circles in this city, first as manager of the Bank of Montreal, and then as manager of the Bank of Commerce. During his residence in Edmonton he was active in church work and social organizations and movements.

His health had not been good for several years, and for the last two years Mr. Pike has lived in Victoria, where he passed away Friday evening.

BE ON THE LOOKOUT for a new breed called the Calf Wheel-chair.

Walter Callow is a bed-ridden Canadian war veteran who got the idea of a trailer equipped with a ramp up which wheel-chair-bound veterans could propel themselves. It is a simple matter for hospitals that have such a "Calf carrier" to get the wheel-chair boys to ball games, shows.

Anyone who has spent much time in vet hospitals knows that it is not so easy for such fellows to get out. No less a personage than Mrs. Truman has interested herself in spreading the word.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

What possibly can make any mother content that nothing will happen to her baby or small child if she leaves it alone? Over and over one reads of children who tumble into tubs of boiling water, who pull pans of boiling liquid from the stove, who fall out of second windows, who another mother tightly tied bed covers, who are set fire to the house and burn it and themselves.

And what is the usual common denominator of all these situations? An absent parent. The children were left alone while the mother gossiped with a neighbor, or she left them to go shopping, or she and the father stepped out to a movie while the children slept.

If these things did not happen over and over again, then one would not expect the parent to be self-conscious about them. But she has only to read the papers and she will know that to leave small children alone in a house, day or night, is a highly dangerous thing to do.

Children are curious. They get into exactly those hazardous activities which have been repeatedly denied them as soon as the inhibiting parent is out of sight.

No one can guarantee that even if the baby is sleeping quietly, he may not awaken an hour later to vomit to choke, to entangle himself in the bedding, to get caught in the crib bars. Any of these things might happen, but they would not be fatal were the parent there to hear the baby's distress and run to his assistance.

It puzzles me why a mother would spend nine precious months bringing a little human life into being and then treat it so casually. With every appreciation for the need of young parents for recreation and freedom from the baby or small children, they cannot be too careful of the expense of the child's very existence.

Every fully mature person knows that she must make some sacrifice to fulfill her responsibilities as a parent. One of them is to see that her children are protected at all times.

Our laetist No. 12, "Early Discipline," which discusses the curious and investigative may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of The Edmonton Bulletin.

Bridge

By William E. McKeeney

The other day I was discussing safety plays and honor combinations with Harry J. Fishbein of New York, whom I consider one of the most accurate players in the country. That is, he usually can be counted upon to make the play that has the best percentage running for him.

Fishbein remarked that the ability of card players in general has improved surprisingly in the past 10, or even five years. If there is a squeeze play in one of the hands in an average duplicate game, a large percentage of the players can be depended upon to execute the squeeze successfully.

The end play is one of the most difficult techniques. Fishbein gave a very fine example in today's hand. If west opens the jack of spades, the contract might easily be defeated. And from the bidding the jack of spades is probably the correct opening lead.

However, the point is this: With West electing to open the jack of hearts and continuing with the ten-spade, how do you make the contract?

Here is the line of play that Fishbein gives: declarer ruffs the second heart, catches the ace of diamonds, and then treats it so casually.

With every appreciation for the need of young parents for recreation and freedom from the baby or small children, they cannot be too careful of the expense of the child's very existence.

Every fully mature person knows that she must make some sacrifice to fulfill her responsibilities as a parent. One of them is to see that her children are protected at all times.

Our laetist No. 12, "Early Discipline," which discusses the curious and investigative may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of The Edmonton Bulletin.

Knox Issues Call To Halifax Pastor

Knox United Church has sent a call to the Rev. Gerald F. Rogers, of Fort Massey United Church, Halifax. This was decided at a meeting held Sunday. If Mr. Rogers accepts the call, he will succeed the Rev. Elgin G. Turnbull who will leave soon to take over a new charge.

Mr. Rogers is a graduate of Dalhousie University, having graduated in arts, and Pine Hill Divinity Hall, graduating in theology. He was for some time an associate minister at the Westminster United Church in Winnipeg. He had charge of churches at Vermont, Plover and Wolfville, all in Nova Scotia, before his appointment to Fort Massey United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Kelley returned Saturday from a honeymoon at Banff and have taken up residence at 10128 121 street. Mrs. Kelley is the former Miss Annie Sheriff McLaren.

Farm Wage Rates At Highest Level

OTTAWA, June 23. — (CP) — Scarcity of labor and maintenance of a high level of farm income pushed May wage rates for farm workers to their highest level — $3.50 per day and $7.51 per month — since comparable statistics became available in 1940, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported last night. The bureau said that with the month of August usually marking the high point for farm wages in any year, it was significant that current May wages in many provinces were approximately the same as those prevailing at August 13, 1946. Except in the case of monthly wage rates with board, British Columbia led the Dominion while rates in Prince Edward Island were lowest.

Handicapped Pupils Return to Alberta

Thirty-eight students who have been attending the McKay school for the deaf in Montreal and other schools for the handicapped in the province of Quebec returned to Alberta Monday morning according to J. Northern Alberta children arrived here by regular CPR train Monday afternoon and will go direct to their homes. A special list has been issued by H. R. E. Andler, minister of education, to employers in the province to find vacancies which might be filled by those students who

Menaced Novelist, Filipino Suicides

MAN HARBOR, Me., June 23. — (AP) — Rita Hayes, 45, Filipino chef who allegedly menaced mystery novelist Mary Roberts Rinehart, Saturday, with pistol and knife, hanged himself Sunday in a lock-up cell with a noose fashioned from clothing. Police Chief George E. Abbott said. Dr. E. J. Morrison, medical examiner, pronounced the dead suicide with temporary insanity a contributing cause. Abbott said Hayes, 25 years an employee of the novelist, was without doubt temporarily insane when he threatened Mrs. Rinehart with a revolver and kitchen cutlery, knives, arrested on a warrant charging assault with intent to murder, told Abbott he had been ill all winter and under doctors care provided by Mrs. Rinehart, the chief said.
